

ABSTRACT

An air-conditioning system for a motor vehicle can be operated as a heat pump. The air-conditioning system includes a compressor with a variable stroke, a heater, a controllable expansion valve, and an evaporator. The controllable expansion valve contributes to the regulation of a heating capacity of the air-conditioning system during the operation of the air-conditioning system as a heat pump.